THE STATE FAIR.

Old Times—The Ladies—Crowds of People—Good Sport and Increasing Interest.

The third day of the Fair opened gloomy enough early in the morning, and it looked for awhile as if the flood gates of heaven would be turned loose for the day. The streets were muddy and rendered still more disagreeable by puddles of water standing here and there much to the inconvenience of pedestrians. The general verdict was that the programme at the track would have to be suspended for the day, but later on the clouds gave way and old Sol appeared on the scene, drying up the mud, changing disappointment into delight. Many more strangers were seen on the streets yesterday than for the two previous days, a number of persons having arrived from the North by private conveyance. A number of Comstock people are here taking in the sights, and every train brings others who feel an interest in the fine display. Fine stock still continue to arrive, and other lots are yet to come. The stock display is much finer than ever and is well worth seeing. Some of as fine cattle as there is in the West is here on exhibition, and attracts great interest. Nearly all the leading stock raisers and horsemen in the State are here, and as a unit pronounce the exhibition a successful one, at least so far as the display and accommodations are concerned. The travel to the track yesterday was quite heavy, nearly every private conveyance in the city being brought into requisition. The regular vehicles that run between the town and the grounds were well patronized, and the gathering large considering the gloomy outlook in the morning. The cloudy weather for the past two days has kept many from a distance from coming here, but a day or two of fine weather will fill the town to its fullest capacity. Thursday night the Pavilion was brilliantly illuminated and although the display is not yet complete and the work of arranging the goods that have already arrived is not perfect, quite a number of our people visited it and were greatly pleased with the showing. Articles for exhibition are coming in all the time, and next week it will show up in all its splendor. All visitors take a deep interest in the display and the success of the Fair this season and the large attendance that is positively assured will bring about a radical change in Nevada and will be the direct cause of larger displays in the future. Some of the leading stockmen say that it will not be long at the present rate when the Nevada Fair will be largely patronized by our sister States and Territories and that it will also be the means of stimulating our people to an effort that will be beneficial to them and the State at large. Our products have not reached perfection by a long shot, but lively competition will soon bring them to that stage. All those who can possibly leave their homes should see the present exhibition, for it is both interesting and instructive.

At the track the first feature was the riding of the ladies, under direction of W. R. Chamberlain. The Judges are J. R. Bradley, E. W. Crutcher, W. H. Gould, J. R. Vail and J. F. Emmitt. The ladies had good saddle horses, and did some very nice riding. They will ride again next Thursday, and jump the hurdles.

The balloon ascension did not take place for fear of fire, as there was just a little wind and Prof. Monroe would not take any chances of destroying his balloon. At 12 o'clock to-day the ascension will positively take place. The half-mile dash was won by Look-out, Sleepy Dick second, Della Walker third, Grey Eagle fourth. Time 50 seconds.

The dash of five-eighths was won by the 2-year-old Al. Farrow in 1:04, Lige Clark, Panama and May Blossom in order named.

The special trotting race was won by Hattie S., Nick winning the first and William P the second heat.

To-day the fast pacers Pocahontas, Prince and Sam Lewis will go, and also Ned, Clara G and Franklin, two fine races.

THE COPY BOOKS.—There seems to be a general uprising among the teachers in the public schools in the State in regard to the newly adopted copy books. In Carson the teachers, so a letter from that place states, refuse flatly to use the books adopted by the Board, and in Reno one teacher also refuses to use them. The question among dealers is who runs the public schools in this State, the teachers or the State Board of Education. There has been enough trouble over these copy books, and it is about time it was settled in some manner. Do away with something, either the books, teachers who refuse to adopt them, or the State Board of Education.

On the Carson river, opposite Dayton, John Gallieri has an eighty-acre ranch which he is constantly increasing. It is the levellest piece of ground on the Coast. Every inch of the ground can be irrigated by simply raising a few gates.

TOUGH LIARS.—Yesterday morning during the rain a party of old-timers were assembled at 315 Sierra street discussing different topics, and at last the conversation turned to the ages of horses, mules, etc. One party asserted that H. Stevens, well-known on the Truckee Meadows, had a horse called "Old John" that was 38 years of age and good for a long lease of life and some service yet. Another party raised him out by stating that his brother owned a jack that was 40 and as lively as a colt. He was about to reach for the pot when a modest individual paralyzed him by saying that he had a mule that was 50 years old. This assertion was too tough to swallow without some backing, and he endeavored to prove his statement by saying that he had been the owner of the animal for 11 years, and that the party he bought him of had the mule in his possession a similar length of time, and stated that the party he obtained him from owned the mule 11 years, and that he was a d—d old mule when he bought him. Another party who couldn't enter on the age business consoled himself by saying he saw a mule pack a 1,200 pound safe into a California mining camp, and that the same animal carried a six-horse coach over the same trail. After the last talker departed, the 60-year-old mule man said, "boys, I believe that fellow told a d—d lie."

THE MAN'S STORY.—J. A. Miller tells us that the person who is supposed to have set fire to the coal oil car made no attempt to escape. He was riding in this car and before getting to Battle Mountain a brakeman told him he would have to get off at Battle Mountain. In getting out he dropped his hat and lit a match to find it, throwing it aside, when he found his hat. The trainmen were down the track loading on some horses for Reno, and, while there, discovered the blaze. They immediately ran down and saved all the cars but two, which were burned to their running gear. This is what the man states for himself and says he is innocent. The investigation was held, yesterday, when the train boys arrived from the west. So says the Reveille.

EX-SENATOR SARGENT'S ESTATE.—An inventory of the estate of ex-Senator A. A. Sargent has been filed in the Probate Department of the Superior Court of San Francisco, by C. C. Bemis, Geo. Barrington and William B. Hooper. The estate consists mainly of shares in gas and other incorporations, valued at $52,500 and real estate of the value of $50,000. The widow asks an allowance of $5,000 for the support of herself and family during the present year.

Michael Kearney got on a rampage at Union on Monday last, and violently assaulted Jack Godfrey, James Sweeney and Dan Lewis, the Constable at that place, attacking the latter with a knife. He also used very bad language to a lady, and was finally arrested.

Over 100 styles of brushes including hair, cloth, hat, tooth, hand, nail, bottle, shaving, etc., etc., for sale at Fasset's drug store at city prices.

Standard Nerve Food a beautiful drink. Geo. Becker, agent, Reno, Nevada.

Hazel Kirke.—The Webster-Brady Dramatic Company played to a splendid audience at the Athenium, Tuesday evening. The piece presented was Hazel Kirke, the wide reputation of which is the smallest part of its well-merited success. The company is a new one but is composed of many well-known artists. The cast is a good one and the production was smooth. The leading part, that of Hazel Kirke, was taken by Miss Charlotte Tittel. She is a charming little actress and wears well with the audience. She cannot be said to capture her auditory by storm, but before the ending of the piece has received liberal proof of their approval. Geo. P. Webster as Dustin Kirke, the miller and the father of Hazel, and Wm. A. Brady as Pittacus Green, are ornaments to their profession. Webster has improved much in his style since his first appearance here. Brady, as Pittacus Green, scored a success. Miss Laura Biggar as Dolly Dutton, was met more than half way by the audience in their efforts to show their appreciation. She possesses a voice of maturated sweetness and power and has it well under cultivation. The rest of the people are good. So says the Santa Rosa Democrat.
